NEWNESS IN SUITS.

Vivid Blue Is the Smart Shade of the Parisian Moment.

A CHARMING SUIT IN BLUE AND WHITE

Paris is favoring blue in all shades this summer. Never has there been such a year for this color, and there seems to be no tone of blue that is not worn. Periwinkle is immensely popular, canard and sea blues are much used, but it is the brilliant blue of which radium is perhaps the latest bon papers and the like. Mrs, Ida Rowell of Hardwick is and most vivid example, that is the risian moment. Though so vivid, it is not crude, but none the less it is trying to many complexions and, like all brilliant blues, will be still more unbecoming as the season advances and our complexions feel the effect of wind and sun. These blues are usually toned down by black.

The suit illustrated is of a vivid blue in radium silk, and the upper part of the skirt is of striped silk in blue and black effect. The coat revers are extremely odd and only becoming to a Utilizing Old Baskets. Do not throw away your old baskets that have outgrown their first usefulness. Cover them with a coat of paint, soft gray below, with different colored borders and handle, and they make artistic receptacles for flowers for formal decorations.

To keep flowers fresh conceal in a basket a bowl or vase that will hold

One such basket with widespreading top and narrower base had a border of soft purple. The handle was tied with violet tulle and the basket filled with white sweet peas.

A bunch of common wood ferns in a white and green basket, with fluffs of white tulle on the handle, assumes the air of an expensive decoration.

Such baskets could also be used as a table centerpiece to hold fruit or flowers. Smaller ones that hold Easter gifts could be painted to match the central basket to heighten the effect of the decoration.

Quaintness In Headgear. Everything in the sartorial world savors of quaintness this season-that is, not of the quaintness as defined by Webster as "fanciful," but singularity of an entirely up to the minute ilk,

Such quaintness is evidenced in the new coiffure worn by the pretty girl pictured. The little side ringlets are one of the latest notions of the hairdressing artists and suggest a lady of ye olden days tricked out in full skirt of daintily sprigged muslin, with a surpliced bodice and possibly a small grenadine shawl about her shapely shoulders. A big coal scuttle bonnet and a reticule hanging on her arm would complete the picture.

When Cleaning Curtain Hooks. To clean curtain hooks place them in water in which a little ammonia has been dissolved and leave them for a little while. This will remove both dirt and rust. When wiped with a clean cloth the pins will fasten into the curtain as easily as new ones.

THE MASTER SUN.

Birius, the Dog Star, May Be the Center of Attraction. Astronomers once believed that the entire starry universe revolved around a center of attraction, and the star named Alcyone, in the group of the Pleiades, was selected by Maedler as marking that great center. It has long been known, however, that Maedler's conclusion, which was based on the apparent motions of the stars, was incorrect, and if any universal center exists it has not yet been discovered. In fact, many of the stars seem to be moving in straight lines. some in one direction and some in another, and among these is our own sun. But it is possible that further observations will show that all the stars are really moving in curved lines In the meantime it has been found that there are certain groups or rets of stars which appear to travel together. To what set, if any, the sun belongs we do not yet know, but Delauney has presented reasons for thinking that those stars whose distances have been measured trial is to say, those which are nearest to us group themselves ground Sirius, the dog star, in a manner similar to that in which the inner planets are grouped around the sun

If this be correct Sirius may possibly be the master sun of which our orb of day is a distant satellite .-Harper's Weekly.

CLYCELIM.

In Many Ways It Is a Woot Remarkattle Subsignos.

One of the great advantages of giveerin in its chemical entiloyment is the fact that it beliber freezes nor evaporates under any ordinary temperature. No perceptible loss by evaporation has been detected at a temperature less than 200 degrees F., but if heated intensely it decomposes with a smell that few persons find themselves able to endure. It burns with a pale flame, similar to that from alcohol, if heated to about 300 degrees and then ignited. Its nonevaporative qualities make the compound of much use as a vehicle for holding pigments and colors, as in stamping and typewriter ribbons, car-

If the pure glycerin be exposed for a crystallizes with the appearance of sugar candy; but, these crystals being once melted, it is almost an impossibility to get them again into the congealed state. If a little water be added to the glycerin no crystallization will take place, though under a sufficient degree of cold the water will separate and form crystals, amid which the glycerin will remain in its natural state of fluidity, If suddenly subjected to intense cold, pure giycerin will form a gummy mass which cannot be entirely bardened or crystallized. Altogether it is quite a peculiar substance.

The Barbarous Suitee. Suttee, or the practice of immolating widows on their husband's funeral pyres in India, was first attacked by the Eritish government in 1829. It was on Dec. 4 of that year that Lord William Bentinck carried a resolution in council by which all who abetted suttee were declared guilty of "culpable homicide." In the year 1817 700 widows were burned alive in Bengal alone, but since the passing of the act the practice has entirely died out. Suttee was really a primitive rite, a survival from barbarous times, and not sanctioned by Hindooism, the passage in the Vedas supporting it being a willful mistranslation. But no previous governor had the courage to violate the British tradition of religious toleration, Lord William Bentinck also suppressed thuggism, which made strangling a religious rite to the goddess Kali.

A historical paper in Lord Montagu's collection in London tells of a strange tragedy "done in Holborn, a little before Christmas," several centuries ago: "A boy seven years old came up into a gentleman's chamber and prattled to him and drew his sword and flourished with it. The gentleman, being in bed, wondered to see the boy toss his blade so and said: 'So, good boy, thou hast done well. Put in the sword.' The boy persisting, the gentleman rose and held him the scabbard, and the rude handed lad, thinking to sheath the sword, lustily chopt it into his body. Company were called. One offered to strike the child. 'Let him alone,' quoth the gentleman. 'God is just. This boy's father did I kill five years since and none knew. Now he hath revenged it.' And the gentleman died the second dressing."
